ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

Consumer confidence rose 2.0% despite the announcement of a third week of lockdown in Sydney as daily COVID-19 cases jumped. The easing of criteria for the federal government's AUD500 assistance payment may have helped, with Sydney itself recording a 3.7% rise in confidence after the plunge the prior week. The emergence of Brisbane, Perth and Darwin from their lockdowns also added to the rebound. A comparison between Sydney and Melbourne (Figure 1) shows that even though there is a sharp decline in confidence in the particular city whenever a lockdown is imposed, sentiment tends to be similar in both cities and there was no great divergence even during Melbourne's prolonged lockdown in 2020.
