ANZ-Roy Morgan Consumer Confidence and inflation expectations

Last weekend (11-12 Jul)	Weekly change, %	Four-week average	Monthly average since 1990	Inflation expectations (four-week ma)
91.6	-0.5%	93.6	112.8	3.2%

This weekly ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence Rating is based on 1,437 interviews conducted online and over the telephone on the weekend. Not seasonally adjusted. Further data history on page 6.

ANZ Head of Australian Economics, David Plank, commented:

Confidence declined further last week, building on the falls seen over the previous two weeks. Consumer confidence is now down some 6% from its level in mid-June as it recovered from the historic low seen at the end of March. The deteriorating conditions in Melbourne and the renewed lockdown are most likely the primary contributor to the turn in sentiment. The biggest fall has been in 'current economic' conditions, which are down around 15% over this period. In contrast, sentiment toward personal finances is close to unchanged, highlighting the role that the massive fiscal stimulus has played in shielding people from the direct fall-out of the economic slump triggered by the health response to the pandemic. How this fiscal support will evolve over the months ahead is the most critical decision facing the Government and the economy.
