CITY OF MELBOURNE

Message from the Lord Mayor of Melbourne

The City of Melbourne is proud to support ANZAAB in bringing the 2013 Melbourne Rare Book Week to our book-loving city.

Rare Book Week is a wonderful winter affair that will draw book lovers from across Australia to enjoy the free lectures, panel forums and exhibitions with the theme “a passion for books”.

Melbourne punches above its weight when it comes to our literary credentials – as a Knowledge City and a UNESCO City of Literature the passion for our city’s literary life runs deep. The enormous success of last year’s Rare Book Week is testament to this.

Thank you to ANZAAB organisers and volunteers for your dedication and commitment to bringing this important event to Melbourne once again.

Beautiful Books: Rare Book Week Launch

Presented by The Wheeler Centre: Books Writing Ideas

In the midst of the e-revolution, where we're as likely to download as to leaf through a book, the idea of the book as an object of beauty is being lost.

Or is it? To celebrate the launch of Melbourne Rare Book Week, a panel of passionate bibliophiles - including collector Des Cowley, designer W.H. Chong and booki.sh co-founder Virginia Murdoch - will explore changing perspectives on what makes us keep, treasure and admire a beautiful book.

Time 6.15-7.15pm

Venue The Wheeler Centre
176 Little Lonsdale Street, Melbourne

They are still strange people, these book collectors

Another look at rare books, crime and murder
A lecture by Graham N. Dudley
Presented by the Friends of the Baillieu Library
University of Melbourne

This talk will look at novels dealing with biblio-crimes, murder, theft, forgery and more. They range across time from Vespasian's Rome through to the modern day. Some detectives will be familiar: Marcus Didius Falco, Lord Peter Wimsey and Sherlock Holmes, to name but three. Others may not be. The scenes of the crime are many and varied: private and institutional libraries, book shops, printeries and monasteries. The locales include Italy ancient and medieval, England, Australia, Ireland and the United States.

Artist's Books: art and collaboration

A talk by Melbourne artist Bruno Leti
Presented by the Melbourne Athenaeum Library

Bruno Leti has sustained a diverse and fertile art practice for over four decades. His contribution to Australian art and his technical virtuosity have been lauded by critics and scholars. He is a painter, print-maker and book artist, who made his first artist's book in 1982. It was a small bound volume of 74 line pen sketches drawn in a commercially-made black-page notebook while visiting Milan. Since then making books has become part of his normal art practice, an activity firmly integrated into his daily life in the studio. Bruno will talk about how these limited edition books are created; the relationships he has developed with poets (in particular Chris Wallace-Crabbe), paper makers, book binders and even the makers of the box housing or slip case his books are sold in. A selection of his artist's books and monographs will be on display in the Library throughout the week.

The Book Theft Century: A Lament

A lecture by Associate Professor Travis McDade
Presented by the Melbourne Law School

Travis McDade, curator of Law Rare Books, received his J.D. from Case Western Reserve University and his M.S.L.I.S. from the University of Illinois. In the United States, he is the country's foremost expert on crimes against rare books, maps, documents and other printed cultural heritage resources. His first book on the subject, The Book Thief: The True Crimes of Daniel Spiegelman, was the first to highlight the federal judicial recognition of books as cultural objects whose value cannot be adequately captured by market price. His second book, forthcoming in June, 2013 from Oxford University Press, is called Thieves of Book Row: New York's Most Notorious Book Theft Ring and the Man Who Ended it. Travis McDade teaches Legal Research at the College of Law and Rare Books, Crime & Punishment at the Graduate School of Library and Information Science. He serves on the editorial boards of The Journal of Art Crime and Library and Archival Security. He has lectured extensively, including radio and television appearances, on the subject of book crime. He is also a regular commentator on the radio program, Legal Issues in the News, on WILL Illinois Public Radio.
