ANZ Economist, Sophia Angala, commented:

ANZ-Roy Morgan Australian Consumer Confidence fell 1.1pts last week, but has remained within the relatively narrow range of 82-88 since mid-August. The decline was largely broad-based, with households feeling less confident about both the financial and economic outlook. Inflation expectations ticked up 0.3ppt to 5.0% last week, a three-month high.

'Time to buy a major household item' was the only subindex to rise last week, increasing 2.5pts to 81.5pts. The subindex is now at its strongest since late 2022, likely linked to Black Friday sales events.
